“Indigenous people can choose to resist these [technological] tools and allow the language to continue down its natural pathway to extinction, or embrace and utilize appropriate tools guided by the goals of the community for language documentation, revitalization, promotion and education.”

Candace Galla

“We must never forget that our culture is one of oral history. We will experience a final erosion of our languages if we're not careful and ensure that we have that face-to-face... that we go out on the land with our kids and our grandkids and we have these discussions. That we shut the BlackBerry off, we leave the iPad at home, and sit down by the lake.”
